

Figure 2.1. Activity/exploration score per trial in the open-field tests of Cape ground squirrels. Increasing activity/exploration score is characterized by decreasing proportion of time walking, total squares visited and percent of squares visited. Mixed-effects models found that activity score increased significantly as trial increased. Each line represents a single individual.

